20 One-Liners to Remember

Quick-fire facts for last-minute revision.

- 1 CCP stands for Certified Credit Professional, an exam offered by IIBF.

IIBF's Certified Credit Professional certification tests practical credit-lending knowledge for banking professionals.

- 2 The CCP exam is conducted in remote-proctored (RP) mode, not at a physical test centre.

RP mode lets IIBF monitor candidates online instead of requiring travel to a designated exam venue.

- 3 RP candidates sit the CCP paper on their own computer from home or office.

An online proctor watches the session via webcam while the candidate answers from a chosen location.

- 4 IIBF holds CCP exams on designated Saturdays that recur through the calendar.

The recurring Saturday cadence means a new CCP slot is usually available soon rather than once a year.

- 5 CCP has no single fixed annual exam date; candidates pick a Saturday slot that suits them.

The rolling RP schedule gives candidates flexibility to choose a date matching their preparation timeline.

6 Registration for a CCP exam date typically opens about 10 days before that date.

This short booking window means candidates should register promptly once it opens.

7 Popular CCP Saturday slots can fill up quickly after registration opens.

High demand for convenient dates makes early booking important for securing a preferred slot.

8 Candidates generally need IIBF Institute membership to register for the CCP exam.

Membership is usually a prerequisite, so it should be arranged well before the registration window opens.

9 A working webcam, microphone and stable internet connection are needed for the RP CCP exam.

These are the basic technical requirements for the online proctor to monitor a remote candidate.

10 IIBF typically requires a system compatibility check before CCP exam day.

Running the check early helps candidates avoid last-minute technical failures during the actual exam.

11 The CCP exam room must be quiet, well-lit and free of other people or reference material.

These environment rules keep the remote-proctored session fair and free of unauthorised assistance.

12 CCP is an objective, multiple-choice paper focused on practical credit knowledge.

The format rewards applied understanding of lending concepts over pure rote memorisation.

13 The CCP syllabus covers the full credit lifecycle, from appraisal through recovery.

Candidates are tested on every stage a working credit professional handles day to day.

14 CCP topics include analysis of financial statements such as balance sheets and key ratios.

Reading financial statements and computing ratios is core to judging a borrower's creditworthiness.

15 The CCP syllabus covers working capital assessment and term loan appraisal.

These modules test a candidate's ability to size fund requirements and assess project finance.

16 CCP also covers credit delivery, documentation, securities and post-disbursement monitoring.

This module tests sanctioning, charge creation and follow-up after a loan is disbursed.

17 Problem loans, NPA management and recovery are part of the CCP syllabus.

Candidates must know early-warning signals, restructuring and the recovery toolkit for stressed loans.

- 18 Candidates should verify exam duration, question count and passing marks on the official IIBF notification.

These specifics can change over time, so third-party sources should never be treated as final.

- 19 During the CCP RP exam, candidates must show a valid photo ID to the online proctor.

ID verification on camera is a standard step before a remote-proctored exam session begins.

- 20 Repeatedly rescheduling a CCP exam date can disrupt a candidate's study momentum.

Each reschedule resets revision rhythm, so committing early to one date is the safer strategy.
