20 One-Liners to Remember

Quick-fire facts for last-minute revision.

- 1 RBI Act 1934 Section 22 gives RBI the exclusive right to issue banknotes in India.

Section 22 grants the Reserve Bank of India the sole authority to issue currency notes.

- 2 The one-rupee note in India is issued by the Government of India, not the RBI.

This is the sole exception carved out under Section 22 of the RBI Act 1934.

- 3 RBI Act 1934 Section 26 declares every RBI-issued banknote to be legal tender.

Section 26 makes RBI notes legal tender for the amount stated on them.

- 4 RBI Act 1934 Section 33 specifies the asset backing required for currency issued by RBI.

Section 33 lists the assets that must back the currency the Issue Department puts into circulation.

- 5 Banking Regulation Act 1949 defines banking as accepting deposits for lending or investment, repayable on demand.

This definition forms the legal foundation of the entire Banking Regulation Act.

6 At least 51% of a banking company's board must have specialised professional knowledge.

The Banking Regulation Act 1949 requires this share of directors to have expertise in fields like banking, law or finance.

7 A banking company can declare a dividend only after making provisions for bad and doubtful debts.

The Banking Regulation Act ties dividend declaration to prudential provisioning and capital-adequacy compliance.

8 Development Financial Institutions (DFIs) provide long-term credit to industry, exports, housing and agriculture.

DFIs fund capital-heavy, slow-return sectors that ordinary commercial banks often avoid.

9 DFIs are driven primarily by public interest and economic development, not maximum profit.

Unlike commercial banks, a DFI's core mission is national development rather than pure profitability.

10 IFCI, set up in 1948, was India's first Development Financial Institution.

IFCI was created to provide long-term finance to industrial projects after independence.

11 IDBI was set up in 1964 as an apex DFI and later converted into a commercial bank.

IDBI is a textbook example of a DFI that transitioned into full-fledged banking.

12 SIDBI is the apex institution for financing micro, small and medium enterprises in India.

SIDBI provides direct, indirect and refinance support to the MSME ecosystem.

13 SIDBI's SMILE scheme offers soft loans for machinery purchase and modernisation.

SMILE and SMILE Equipment Finance help small units upgrade plant and machinery.

14 EXIM Bank finances export-oriented projects and overseas joint ventures for Indian companies.

EXIM Bank supports Indian exports through credit, refinance and advisory services.

15 National Housing Bank (NHB) was set up to promote and refinance housing finance institutions.

NHB also oversees the soundness of housing finance companies in India.

16 NABARD is the apex Development Financial Institution for agriculture and rural development.

NABARD refinances rural credit and supports cooperative and regional rural banks.

17 NaBFID was established in 2021 to finance India's infrastructure development.

NaBFID is the newest DFI, created to close India's long-term infrastructure-financing gap.

18 NaBFID funds greenfield and brownfield infrastructure projects such as roads and energy.

Its mandate covers new and existing infrastructure across logistics and urban development too.

19 The RBI Act 1934 establishes and empowers the Reserve Bank of India as India's central bank.

It governs currency issue and monetary management, distinct from bank regulation.

20 The Banking Regulation Act 1949 governs how banking companies must be governed and run.

It sets prudential norms, board composition rules and dividend conditions for banks.
