20 One-Liners to Remember

Quick-fire facts for last-minute revision.

- 1 AFM (Accounting & Financial Management for Bankers) is JAIIB Paper 3.
It is described as the practical, numbers-heavy paper among the four JAIIB papers.

- 2 There are three types of accounts in accounting: Real, Personal, and Nominal.
Correctly identifying the account type is essential before applying the golden rule for a journal entry.

- 3 The golden rule for Real Accounts is: Debit what comes in, Credit what goes out.
Real accounts cover all assets of a firm, whether tangible or intangible.

- 4 The golden rule for Personal Accounts is: Debit the receiver, Credit the giver.
Personal accounts relate to individuals, firms and companies such as debtors, creditors and banks.

- 5 The golden rule for Nominal Accounts is: Debit all expenses and losses, Credit all incomes and gains.
Nominal accounts relate to expenses, losses, incomes and gains rather than physical items.

6 Tangible real accounts include assets like building, machinery, stock and land.

These are physical assets you can touch, falling under the Real Account category.

7 Intangible real accounts include items like goodwill, patents and trademarks.

These are non-physical assets that are still classified as Real Accounts.

8 Personal accounts have three sub-types: natural, artificial and representative personal accounts.

Natural accounts relate to real people, artificial to legal entities, and representative to indirect person-related accounts.

9 Representative personal accounts include prepaid expenses, outstanding expenses and accrued income.

These accounts indirectly represent a person or entity rather than a named individual or firm.

10 The Double Entry System means every debit in one account has a matching credit in another account.

This ensures money is recorded as moving between accounts rather than appearing or vanishing.

11 The five steps of the accounting process are recording, classifying, summarising, preparing final statements, and analysing.

These steps move from the Journal and Ledger through to Profit & Loss, Balance Sheet, and ratio analysis.

12 Bookkeeping is the recording, classifying and summarising of financial transactions systematically.
It forms the data-entry layer of finance, distinct from the wider analytical scope of accountancy.

13 Accountancy includes bookkeeping plus the analysis and interpretation of financial records.
Bookkeeping records data; accountancy makes sense of that recorded data.

14 The four branches of accounting are Stewardship, Financial, Cost, and Management Accountancy.
Each branch serves a different purpose, from historical record-keeping to planning tools like ratio analysis.

15 Cost Accountancy ascertains the cost of each unit, department and process to control cost and raise profit.
It focuses specifically on cost control rather than general financial record-keeping.

16 Management Accountancy uses tools like Ratio Analysis, Cash Flow, Fund Flow and Capital Budgeting.
These tools support internal planning and decision-making rather than external reporting alone.

17 Financial Accounting evolved from the Single Entry system to the Double Entry system.
This evolution improved the systematic recording of business transactions over time.

18 The Trial Balance is the statement used to summarise ledger balances in the accounting process.

It comes after journal entries and ledger posting, before final statements are prepared.

19 A recommended AFM preparation timeline is about 45 days of roughly one focused hour per day.

This schedule is suggested as sufficient for most JAIIB AFM aspirants when studied consistently.

20 Depreciation, interest calculation, ratio analysis and bond or yield sums are described as recurring AFM numerical topics.

These numerical topics are said to repeat almost every JAIIB exam cycle.
